Excerpt from State Normal Magazine, Vol. 15: November, 1910 It is the work of this college to render service to the state by sending out trained and competent teachers to educate and inspire those who will be the lawmakers and citizens of the next generation; to render service to the state by training young women to be self-supporting in professions to which they are fitted; to render service to the state by teaching, in the departments of domestic science and domestic art, scientific methods of housekeeping and simple, attractive schemes of home arrangement and decoration, with the aim of lightening the drudgery and brightening the surroundings of the home. These three methods of rendering service are not mere theories; they are being yearly put into practice, with earnestness and devotion, by those who have learned-them. The teaching of them constitutes the present work of the college during its eight months of regular work.
