Excerpt from The Memorial of Two Events in the Early Days of Our Country: Is Respectfully Inscribed to the Members of the American Antiquarian, and Massachusetts Historical Societies Capt. Thomas, the narrator, was instantaneously struck dead, without any injury to his companions. In the manuscript, which was written about twenty five years after the occurrence, it is stated that this happened in August; but Mr. Arnold wrote in the margin of the manuscript the following words, probably obtained from some other person, whose testimony was equally as good and more positive - the time as I am certainly informed was the last day of July In this, Mr. Arnold is sustained by Mr. Secretary Morton in his New England's Memorial, and by the verdict of the jury of inquest held upon the body of the deceased on the day of the melancholy occurrence, and which was recorded soon afterwards in the proceedings of the General Court of the Colony of New Plymouth. A literal copy of the above mentioned verdict will be given in its proper place. The second stroke of lightning occurred on the twenty third day of June, in the year 1666; and produced its dreadful effects upon the numerous inmates of the house of the same Mr. Phillips, whose son had been killed by the former.
