Excerpt from Indian Bulletin for 1867, Vol. 1: Containing a Brief Account of the North American Indians, and the Interpretation of Many Indian Names Further south, the beautiful Pocahontas saved the life of Captain John Smith, and her countrymen furnished provisions to sustain the infant colony of Virginia. In New York, in Rhode Island, and wherever the first settlers of this continent came, Indian storehouses were opened to supply the wants of famishing adventurers. They furnished food, shelter, land, trade, and wealth to hundreds and thousands. Who was this Indian who nursed the infancy of this great nation? He was a man made in the image of God, and once sole proprietor of this vast continent. He was a true friend, a brave warrior, generous in disposition, and a devout worshiper of the Great Spirit. He had a language more copious than any in the known world. He was an eloquent orator, a skillful mechanic, a successful physician, a practical farmer; and the native Mexicans were more accurate astronomers than either the ancient Greeks or Romans.
